Visit:

Kate & Ella Statue: Located in the Kate & Ella Court on the Katella side of the property is the historical statue of Kate and Ella. This statue is very well known throughout the city of Anaheim. Have you ever wondered how Katella got its name? Kate and Ella were the daughters of John Rea, the owner of a walnut ranch in Anaheim. John decided he would name his walnut ranch after his daughters Kate and Ella by combining their names to create "Katella." Shortly after this, many residents in Anaheim picked up on the name and Katella Avenue was born! Stop by the statue for a blast from the past and a journey through history.

Jae Kitinoja Rainbow Stairs: Centered in the middle of the property, these famous colorful stairs can be found. Designed by artist Jae Kitinoja, this art installation has been on display since February 2017. The design, mirrored on both staircases, brings amazing color to the court and is definitely worth a visit for a fun photo op!

Anna Marcantel Mandala: The "Mandala of Unity" can be found toward the North end of the property. This colorful mural was painted by artist Anna Marcantel. A mandala is a geometric figure that represents the universe of spirituality. Its intricate design and vibrant color scheme make it a must-see!
