

Interest Group

Similar to a formal chapter, an Interest Group is an informal association of concrete professionals who wish to periodically gather to discuss and learn more about concrete technology but cannot attain the required number of ACI Member signatures to form a chapter. It is also an option for former chapters who for whatever reason can no longer maintain the affiliation requirements of a chapter.

The requirements to establish an Interest Group are:

- A minimum of one ACI Member and three other individuals within the proposed territory who have an interest in concrete design, construction, production, testing etc. All 3 individuals are required to be from different organizations and represent different segments of the concrete industry or;
- A minimum of five individuals within the proposed territory who have an interest in concrete design, construction, production, testing, etc. All 5 individuals must be from different organizations and represent at least 3 different segments of the concrete industry.
