Spanish Association of Structural Engineering

Spanish Association of Structural Engineering

ACI and ACHE signed an International Partnership Agreement in Feb. 26th 2018.

ACHE was founded in 1999 as the result of merging ATEP (Spanish Technical Association of Prestressed Concrete, founded in 1949 by Eduardo Torroja) and GEHO (Spanish Concrete Group, created in 1986).

In June 2017, ACHE changed its name from Spanish Concrete Association to Spanish Association of Structural Engineering.

ACHE currently has about 1000 members, mainly civil/structural engineers and architects. Several major companies from all over the world also support ACHE with corporate memberships.

What does ACHE do?

Promotes researching through working groups. Currently there are 8 committees (with many subcommittees).

Publishes technical bulletins on particular topics.

Organizes events such as congresses (major event every 3 years), seminars, technical meetings... to spread the knowledge and propitiating technical discussions.

Publishes a structural journal, Hormigón y Acero (abstracts will be included in ACI portal).

What does ACHE do?

Commission 1: Design

Commission 2: Materials.

Commission 3: Construction.

Commission 4: Maintenance.

Commission 5: Structural elements.

Commission 6: Steel and composite structures.

Commission 7: Envelopes and structural elements in architecture.

Commission 8: Engineering and society.

41 active working groups

What does ACHE do?

Publication of technical bulletins (Monografías) and short technical reports (Cuadernillos).

Introduction for every section

An open association with close links with different institutions

ATEP was a funding body of FIP (1952) and Eduardo Torroja was one of the six founding people of CEB (1953). ACHE is the official national fib group in Spain.

Current fib's President, Hugo Corres, is a former ACHE president.

Current fib's General Secretary, David Fernández-Ordoñez, is a former ACHE treasurer and very active member.

Current Convener of fib's YMG, Abraham Sánchez Corriols, is a young member of ACHE.

Partner agreement with the Technical Association of Ports and Coasts.

Partner agreement with Eduardo Torroja Institute for Construction Science (Spanish National Research Council -CSIC)

Thanks to the recent International Partner agreement signed, we expect to increase collaboration and cooperation with ACI through different activities.
