ACI 369.1-17: Standard Requirements for Seismic Evaluation and Retrofit of Existing Concrete Buildings (ACI 369.1-17) and Commentary

This standard provides retrofit and rehabilitation criteria for reinforced concrete buildings based on results from the most recent research on the seismic performance of existing concrete buildings.

ACI UNIVERSITY ONLINE COURSES

On-Demand Course: Performance Engineered Concrete Mixtures

Learning Objectives

1. Identify key characteristics necessary for the successful implementation of performance-related specifications for concrete mixtures.
2. Describe new test methods that are available and may be implemented in future specifications and how to properly specify new methods and acceptance criteria.

3. Recognize strategies for successful performance mixture development programs.
4. Summarize concrete performance requirements for shrinkage, freezing-and-thawing resistance, alkali-silica reactivity, and chloride penetration resistance.

On-Demand Course: Selecting the Right Service Life Prediction Approach

Learning Objectives

1. Recognize the importance of service life prediction approaches in the design process.
2. Describe the different general service life prediction approaches that are available in the industry.
3. Summarize the advantages and disadvantages of different service life prediction approaches.
4. Evaluate different service life prediction approaches for selecting the appropriate approach for a specific project.
